Important Basics for Travelling in Singapore

Grade +SS: Spotless Singapore

Singapore's reputation for cleanliness is upheld by strict regulations that keep the city clean and safe.

Visitors can contribute by properly disposing of all waste. Since June 1, 2024, it is mandatory to return trays and leave tables tidy in restaurants and food courts, including clearing used napkins, straws, and leftovers.

Dress to Express Respect

Modest attire is highly encouraged when visiting religious sites. To honour religious and cultural norms, it's advisable to cover shoulders and knees.

A Breath of Fresh Air

Singapore takes pride in its commitment to fostering clean and healthy environments for everyone. The city implements a rigorous smoke-free policy that extends to parks, bus stops, and covered walkways. For those who smoke, designated areas are thoughtfully provided.

Chew on These Regulations

While it may seem unusual, the sale and import of chewing gum is banned in Singapore, as are e-cigarettes.

It's wise to respect these regulations to avoid complications during your stay.
